

About Our Instructor

Adrian Garcia, DiversiTech's Field Training and Content Manager, has over 10 years of experience specializing in supporting HVAC/R contractors and distributors through targeted training and business coaching. Adrian has developed comprehensive curriculum designed to enhance technicians' parts knowledge, strengthen contractors' ability to track and improve company performance, and assist distributors in highlighting the value behind their material. His work focuses on delivering practical, results-driven education that elevates operational effectiveness across the HVAC/R industry.

Training Topics

We offer different HVAC/R topics, ranging from 2-8 hours of comprehensive training and continuing education credits. Our instructor-led training courses are held at your facility which drives technicians to your branches, increasing loyalty by providing them with this value-added service.

NATE Approved Critical Components Training

DiversiTech has developed DiversiTech University, a complete HVAC/R critical components training program which has received approval by North American Technician Excellence (NATE). Our instructor-led course is designed to help technicians maintain their educational hours to retain their NATE certification. Unlike other distributors, who may only offer training on one HVAC/R component, DiversiTech's program is designed to train on our entire product line, demonstrating how the various critical components in the HVAC/R system interact with each other resulting in either proper or improper performance of the system.

DiversiTech is a Registered Training Provider (RTP). Our RTP #: 5275
